THE LOUNGER.

I see a number of conductors on the recently completed Texas and St. Louis road have been indicted for stealing from the company, in other words "knocking down." A test case was made of one of them, and after he had been acquitted on a half dozen counts the other cases, were thrown out of court. Now, a raffroad so suspicious of its employes as to cause their proseention upon mere suspicion, need not expect in the future to receive as ill-cient service as if it had treated them all as honest men until it had corelasive proof of individual dishonesty. and then prosecuted the offender. In the first place, rallways do not pay enough wages for the business talent enough wages for the business talent required to make a first-class conductor. And that reminds me, there was Northwest Texas useing circuit, and okee a conductor in Tennessee, who was very efficient, but after a term of years the company thought he was putting on too much style on $75 a month. So he was arraigned before the superintendent, and after some pected the cause of his dismissal, and regular meeting, by awakening and talk, discharged. The conductor susproceeded to reason with the superinters in this city. There are horses tendent after this fashion: "Now, enough at the track new to get up look here, general, I have been with this road eight years. During that few good purses will bring more, time I have married, built a house and Nat's scheme is a good one, and I hope bought a horse and buggy. Now if he will succeed, you fire me, you will have to get a new man, and he'll have to have a house it on $75 a month any more than I who die, since only the good are buried. So it will be cheaper to keep me." The superintendent saw the

In states where this polley has been pursued. I notice that the one-idea men almost invariably proveeranks or fanntics when invested with political honors. Now I hold that an honest man at heart, as I take it nearly every one of the Texas delegation is, who makes the science of politics a study until he familiarizes himself with it in all its ramifications, is better prepared to grapple questions of state and national policy than the much talked of individual who comes up fresh from the people. True Statement of the Cooke Cattle Transaction at Dallies. To the tiazette.

Please allow me to correct an error committed by your your Dallas correspondent in his communication published in your paper of yesterday;

In the first place, my brother, John 3. Andrews, and not I, purchased the cattle from F. H. Cooke of Dallas. The price of the cattle was $915 for the sixty-one cattle to be delivered here, erford and not $0.15 per head, as stated by your correspondent. My brother advanced Cooke $25 in cash and deposited $200 with Messrs, Oliver & Griggs, ca tie. The other statements of your wherewithal to put forth. Ballas correspondent are substantially correct. There is no doubt that Cooke sold cattle that did not belong to him.

John S. Andrews has a bill of sale to the cattle, written by an able attorney of Dallas and signed by Cooke n. the of Dalias and signed by Cooke in the Notice.
